The sea rose 39 m in 11,000 years and turned the valleys of the Calanques into inlets

Marseille to Cassis · sea level from 66 index points on the French Mediterranean coast · 31 m of the rise came in its first 3,500 years a The coast from Marseille to Cassis ground height and sea depth b The rise slowed from 89 cm a century to 11 cm relative sea level, m c Through Cap Morgiou: cliffs plunge to a floor that was dry land height relative to today's sea level, m · heights ×2.5

d The sea climbed the cliffs, then filled the valleys today's ground at three sea levels · heights ×3.5 · front face: the Sormiou valley; right face: the sea floor · dotted: today's shore

IGN RGE ALTI (Licence Ouverte); EMODnet Bathymetry (CC BY); Vacchi et al. 2021 (CC BY); Natural Earth · calanques.py · git d3bf290